District recognized for bear-proofing

At the July meeting of council, the District received formal recognition from the Conservation Officer Service, for its new bear-resistant commercial bins which the Service says has reduced human-bear interactions in town.

In his presentation, Officer Eamon McArthur from the Prince George detachment commented that 2023 was a particularly bad year in Mackenzie for garbage bears.

Mayor Atkinson received a plaque on behalf of Council.

The subject of garbage bears came up again this week at Council's Committee of the Whole meeting. Mayor Atkinson, commenting on a number of residential garbage/wildlife attractant violations reported by Bylaw Services, suggested that it might be time to start issuing tickets for garbage violations.

Canfor suspends aerial spraying – for now

Canfor has no plans to spray aerial glyphosate in B.C. in 2026, nor any firm plans for spraying after this year either, according to a Ministry of Environment communication to James Steidle of Stop the Spray BC in Prince George.

Steidle, long an opponent of the use of chemical herbicides in forestry, says that Canfor has not submitted any of the required Notice of Intent to Treat (NIT) maps to the ministry this year.

"[Canfor] has conducted the majority of the spraying in the Prince George region in the past 20 years, much of it targeting fire-resistant aspen," Steidle said in a news release. That the company is, at least for now, stopping the practice is a big victory for his group and other stakeholders, he says.

"The public needs to say a big thanks to all... who took the time to spread awareness about this detrimental practice, and in

News of the Odd:

A San Francisco man pranked the internet

by creating his own AI "chatbot" service – ChatTJB – which didn't use AI at all. It was just him messaging live and anonymously with users.

His "AI" stands for "Average Individual", or perhaps "Artisanal Intelligence". He even provided "AI" graphics – literally hand-sketches by him in real time.

His billboard advertisement, in a low-key area of the city, slowly drew attention and after a few days, he was responding to hundreds of requests a day.

A sobering realization for him was that many users simply wanted to talk. This, along with interest from outsiders who wanted to participate, has given him the idea to turn ChatTJB into a community project with live volunteers.

EV charging at junction?

A letter urging the District of Mackenzie to install an EV charging station at the highway junction received some pushback at the council meeting this week.

Letter writer Kevin Walker suggested that, among other things, a charger at the Visitor Caboose would encourage travelers to visit town and shop at local businesses.

At the meeting, Councillor Wright supported the idea. Mayor Atkinson opposed, commenting that having the charging station in town is what brings EV users into town and into local businesses.

Council concluded with a request to staff to look into EV signage at the junction.

Cancelled: Military exercise for Sept 9 - 10

[Update Sept 3:]

Macktowners who were excited at the prospect of a visit from the Canadian Armed Forces in town will be disappointed to learn that the training exercise planned in or near Mackenzie for September 9 to 10 has been cancelled.

The exercise, named BOAR RIDER 26, and conducted by 1 Service Battalion, was to involve movement and infrastructure reconnaissance, assess transportation infrastructure such as airports, helicopter landing sites, seaports, railheads, and road networks, and improve the CAF's ability to support domestic operations, including disaster response.

A letter from the battalion to the District stated: "Due to a change in the scope of the exercise, the planned CAF activities within your area have been cancelled

Did you know?

A "Dancing Plague" once infected up to 400 people in a small medieval village in France.

The mania apparently began in Strasbourg in July 1518 with one woman who just started dancing in the street and continued for an entire week.

One by one, then in groups, others joined the spectacle, some of them dancing themselves to death. Town officials constructed a stage and hired a band to let the dancers dance it out.

By August, as many as 400 had died of exhaustion, stroke, or heart attack. In September the dancers were removed to a mountain retreat, ending the epidemic.

'Canfor suspends spraying'...

particular to the leadership of the Lheidli T'enneh First Nation."

The Lheidli T'enneh announced last fall a ban on the use of forestry herbicides across all of its territory, which includes Prince George and the Robson Valley.

Earlier this month, Stop the Spray BC had called on the Ministry of Environment to release all maps of proposed spraying in the Prince George area.

Steidle says that public release of this information is not a current requirement, which leaves residents and backcountry users in the dark about what areas have been treated with chemical herbicides.

and will no longer take place as originally communicated."

The original exercise was planned for training purposes. No live ammunition was to be present and no hazardous activities were to be involved.

Four-minute daily workout makes big difference

A new study found that just four minutes of daily strengthening exercise can dramatically increase the quality of life for aging adults.

Researchers at Penn State College of Medicine found that strength training reduces fall risk, improves longevity, independent living and more.

Routine

(Cycle: 30 secs exercise, 30 secs rest)

Push-Ups: Perform

against a wall or counter-top for support if needed.

Chair Stands: Stand up from a chair and sit back down, using hands on knees for assistance if necessary.

Two-Arm Resistance Band Rows: Use resistance bands to pull towards your body, strengthening the back and arms.

Stair Stepping: Step up and down on a low step or platform to improve leg strength and coordination.
